Special Education teachers, SLPs, OTs, counselors, general education teachers, administrators, psychologists, psychiatrists, social workers, TAG teachers, PTs, principals, nurses, parents, and anyone who works with someone on the autism spectrum, ADHD, bi-polar, or other learning disabilities or has executive functioning deficits.

“CASE BY CASE” with SARAH WARD, M.S., CCC-SLP

If you have heard Sarah present before you know her lectures are packed with both theory and many practical strategies to implement in school, clinic, and home settings! But what does a course of intervention look like for a student? In this presentation Sarah will present case studies to show you how to choose and implement executive function interventions to help students learn and generalize strategies and progress towards independent, strong executive function skills. There will be tips on motivating children and teens to engage in therapy, methods for incorporating executive function strategies into the classroom, and approaches to engaging teachers, who in turn, can naturally infuse strategies into their classes. Sarah will briefly review the student's relevant testing and academic history. Then she will guide you with the process of selecting strategies for improving executive function skills and teach you how to progressively apply them. Strategies to coordinate the implementation and carry over of strategies from the school/clinic to home will be provided. Take your executive function program to the next level! Elementary and high school case studies will be provided. Regardless of the age student you work with you will be able to visualize your own students within the example case studies and relate to the challenges experienced by the student, educator, and parents. Adapt the strategies and use them in your own course of intervention for students.

If you require special assistance, please contact AEP Connections to inform them of your special needs by emailing: info@aeconnections.com or calling: 833.237.2668
